Perspectives on Transcultural Psychiatry: Minority Groups, Racism and Ethnic Schizophrenia

Professor Dr. Kwame McKenzie, MD, MRCPsych.(UK)

He teaches at the Institute of Philosophy, Diversity and Mental Health in the University of Lancashire, UK and is also the Deputy Director of Continuing & Community Care in the Schizophrenia Program at CAMH, Toronto. His many research publications focus on redesigning mental health services for visible minority groups, community engagement, racism, pathways to care and suicide. While much of his work has targeted groups from the 200 million people across the world who are visible minorities in another country, his research findings help to build inclusive, humane and effective models of mental health care for everyone.
